THE FOURTH WELL CELEBRATED HERE

Safe and Sane Plan Works Out Well
--No Accidents--Big Fireworks Display Closes the Day's Exercises.

The Fourth of July in this city, may be recorded as the Safe and Sane plan and with the maximum of enjoyment for everybody. Starting the night before with the best celebration held in this city for years, with thousands of people out until the small hours of the morning, and not an accident of any kind reported and not an arrest made for disturbance, it ended Saturday night with a handsome display of fireworks which was witnessed by nearly ten thousand people.

The weather was ideal, not as warm as is generally meted out to the Fourth, but clear sky and a cool breeze which made all outdoor sports enjoyable.

There were of course the usual ringing of the bells morning, noon and night, and the firing of the national salute at the navy yard at noon.

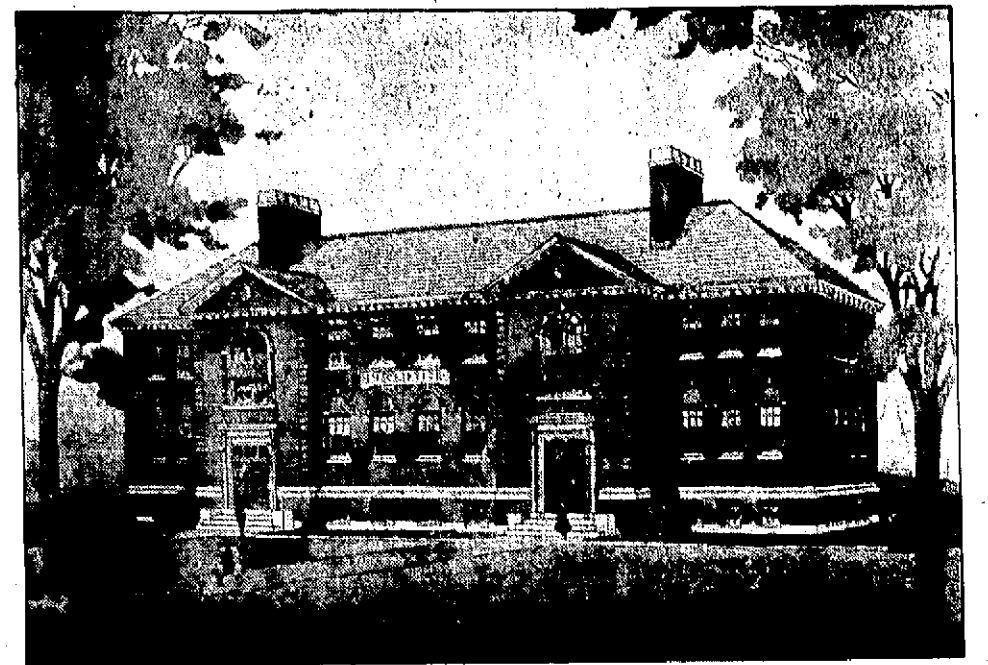

In all of the clubs there was open house and a large number of the members were present with out of town guests. At the Country Club it was an all day affair with a large attendance and with sports and dancing in the evening.

During the afternoon the Portsmouth Band gave a concert on Market Square and at six o'clock they adjourned to the play grounds and gave a concert until eight o'clock.

In the afternoon there was a ball game at the play grounds but there was a large number of children enjoying the grounds. The tennis courts were in great demand all of the day.

The crowning event of the day was the fireworks display in the evening at the play grounds. They were shown from the Marginal road side and long before eight o'clock the time scheduled the bleachers on the play grounds were packed and all of the ground along the side hill into Rockland street was crowded, while hundreds of automobiles were parked in the grounds and on Rockland street and the streets in

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING AN ATTRACTIVE COLONIAL DESIGN

PROPOSED NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

The above cut is a picture of the proposed new school house on Lafayette Road, the plans of which have been accepted by the Board of Instruction.

Mr. Clarence P. Hoyt of Boston is the architect and he has drawn the building along colonial lines, and has made a very attractive building. It will face the Ward play ground and with this in mind the architect has provided that the end and rear of the building will be along attractive lines.

The plans call for an eight room building, on the first floor there are four rooms, the principal's office and a large supply room, the principal's office being in the front of the building. On each side of the entrance are small store rooms for athletic supplies. The second floor has four rooms and a teacher's room and a small room where special work can be done with backward scholars.

The rooms are on the end and rear with the corridor running on the front. The building is equipped with smoke doors and all fire preventives, meets all of the Massachusetts requirements. In the basement there are two large play rooms in addition to the cold rooms and heating space and janitor's room.

FIRST CLASH OF RIVAL FACTIONS

Green Acre Trustees Act With Sheriff and Prof. Schmidt is Not Allowed to Speak in The Pines.-- Miss Hammond Tells of Her Experience on Recent Visit to Miss Farmer.

The first clash between the trustees of the Green Acre Fellowship, headed by Alfred E. Hunt of Boston, the so-called Bahabst faction, and the "antile" headed by Dr. William Moore, 284 Governor St., M. Waller of Connecticut and Frederick Bangs took place Sunday morning.

The latter had announced through the press that Prof. Nathaniel Schmidt of Cornell University would deliver two lectures at the Pines, the favorite outdoor place of worship for those congregating at Green Acre, Saturday night, William H. Randall of Boston, who is the lessee of the property for the Green Acre Fellowship, notified the opposite faction that they could not have the grounds Sunday for a meeting.

An invitation was extended to them to participate in the services to be held under the auspices of the trustees of the fellowship, which offer was emphatically declined by the spokesman for the "antile."

Sunday morning at 10 a conference of three of the trustees, Alfred E. Hunt, William H. Randall of Boston, and Mrs. Alice Ives Breed of New York, took place at the Pines and this was followed by a service conducted by Rev. Howard Dyer of Montclair, N. J., who took for his theme "The Religion of the Spirit."

About 10.30 Prof. Schmidt, accompanied by Miss Elsie, came to the grounds accompanied by 20 or more of the "antile." The first two, who were considerably in advance of the remainder of the party, were met at the entrance of the Pines by Mr. Randall, Aaron A. Cole, legal adviser of George B. Hammond, guardian of Miss Sarah J. Farmer, in Maine, and Deputy Sheriff Maurice S. Leach. Mr. Randall politely informed Prof. Schmidt and his companion that the ground had been leased to him and could not be used without his permission and for no other purpose than the regular Green Acre Fellowship program.

He extended an invitation to take part in the meeting that was then in progress, but this was refused. Prof. Schmidt and his party, after a brief consultation withdrew, and went into the roadway opposite the entrance to the Pines, where, standing on a pile of earth covering the new water main he spoke on "Paul and Prof. Royce's Conception of the Beloved Community."

Prof. Schmidt was advertised to speak at the Pines at 4.30 in the afternoon, and Sheriff Leach was on hand at the time to prevent trespass on the property, but an attempt was made.

It was reported in the morning that Miss Farmer would be brought from the sanitarium in Portsmouth to make an appeal for the use of the Pines by Prof. Schmidt, but the founder of Green Acre did not appear.

At the appointed time in the afternoon Prof. Schmidt and his followers again took up their position in the road opposite to the entrance to the entrance to the Pines. The gathering, which numbered about 60, with women predominating, was a picturesque one.

Some of the women who were fashionably dressed reclined on the greenward, while others occupied seats on the mound of earth. Some of the men stood with bared heads.

On the opposite side of the street, guarding the approach to the Pines, was the sturdy deputy sheriff and his assistant. Prof. Schmidt took for his afternoon theme, "The Circle in Mexico and the World's Peace," and his remarks were attentively listened to.

While the "antile" were holding their meeting of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the Green Acre Fellowship, consisting of Alfred E. Hunt, William H. Randall, Marian E. Breed of Boston, Mrs. Alice I. Breed of New York and Francis H. Keefe, held a conference at the Farmer homestead and prepared a statement of their plans and attitude, which will shortly be given to the public.

The continued hearing on the legality of the annual meeting of the Green Acre Fellowship, which has been in the Maine supreme court the past year, will be taken up at Portland Thursday. This action has been brought by Dr. William Moore, Frederick Bangs and others in behalf of the "antile" in an effort to wrest control of the property from the present board of trustees.

The fellowship has a membership of nearly 400 and the administration is vested in its board of trustees as constituted and elected by vote of the fellowship.

Miss Emma B. Hammond, cousin of Miss Farmer and at present in charge of the farmer homestead, was recently seen by a Herald representative and asked whether the reported assault on her at the local sanitarium was true.

WANT TO GET BACK HERE DAISIES TOLD OF HIDDEN WEALTH

Crew of Nashville Not a Happy Lot Owing to Conditions

In a communication from one of the crew of the U. S. S. Nashville, now in Mexican waters, to the Army and Navy Register, it is evident that the ship's company is in no happy mood and that they are anxious to get back to Portsmouth, their home port. The letter is as follows:

After reading several articles relative to the work done by various ships and the length of their stay in southern waters I am prompted to call your attention to the following:

The Nashville left her home yard, in Portsmouth, in August 1913, and has not been back to the United States since. For over ten months she has been anchored off one port or another in Honduras, Santo Domingo, Haiti, and finally Mexico. During this time something like 160 men have been cooped up in the space meant for 120, with practically no opportunity to get off the ship and with the thermometer ranging between 85 and 105 degrees. The only breaks have been one of four days in Santiago in December and another of six days in Havana in February. These have given no man on the ship more than five days regular liberty, and these few days were in "split" towns and not comparable with liberty in any port in the States. This seems rather pitiful when one considers the fleet's trip to Europe and their Christmas liberties in New York, especially if one realizes how much more capable of entertaining themselves a battleship's crew, with its band, boxing machines, etc., is than a gunboat's. Two other gunboats have gone forth, the Petrel and the Wheeling. The Petrel came south nearly two months after the Nashville, and the Wheeling, while it came south earlier, had a month's liberty in New Orleans during the winter. The Nashville is now anchored off Alvarado, Mexico, with no other ship for company, no communication with the shore, no ice, and a temperature of about 100 degrees. A tug brings mail once a week from Vera Cruz and each mail brings words of some ship leaving for the north. So far one man on the ship has become mentally deranged.

The Misses Hartford Give Party Complimentary to Miss Eloise Borthwick.

The Misses Borthwick and Emma Hartford entertained twenty-one girl friends, complimentary to Miss Eloise Borthwick, at their summer residence at Wallis Sands on Friday afternoon. The party enjoyed five hundred and the game was filled with enthusiasm. At the conclusion of cards the following poem was read:

To Miss Eloise
"When my ship comes in" is a saying old,
And whoever told it true,
Your ship with treasures of wealth untold
Has come to its landing for you.

The treasures have always been on board--
The ship always near the shore;
But not till it willed of its own accord
Could the vessel deposit its lore.

But now if you search by the ocean side
Washed in by the wind and the waves,
I think you will find, tho' they're seeking to hide
What lies low in their sandy graves.

"Daisies won't tell," says the song, I know,
But these daisies will tell you;
So where daisies hid you, there you must go
And please take us with you too.

At this initiative, the girls went down the steps to the sands, where daisies hid the way, and at each spot where the girls were hidden, a cluster of daisies told the secret. Much merriment was derived from this innovation, which forced Miss Borthwick to search diligently for the hidden treasures. At each spot, where the daisies were there was a dainty white parcel which contained beautiful and exquisitely embroidered pieces of linen, including almost everything in the line of linen articles. At the conclusion of this unique stunt the guest of honor left rich in the possession of her new treasures.

The party then repaired to the dining room where also the daisies featured in the decorating scheme.

A delicate luncheon was served the menu consisting of salads, sandwiches, olives, cakes, fancy wafers, ices, fruit punch and candies.

The affair was greatly enjoyed by all present and pleasant recollections of the same will linger for many days with those fortunate enough to be present.

MARINES AT LAST WIN A GAME

Defeated Consolidation Coal Co. in a Fast Game--Pitchers Battle in Which Errors Counted.

The Marines broke into the Sunset League schedule on Friday evening when they defeated the Consolidation Coal Company in the play off of a protest game. The Marines really played the best game of the season and gave Bennett who pitched a fine game good support. Pilgrim really pitched the better game allowing three hits in the third after two men had been retired but here Estebrook and Remick made two errors which netted two runs. Up to that inning but six men had been going out in order.

The Consolidation got a run across in the first inning when Pilgrim singled through third stole second and scored when Moser threw wild to first and the ball rolled to the bleachers. They scored again in the fourth and also poor base running threw the game away. Estebrook had reached first on Whitmore's fumble of a fly ball which allowed him to go to second. He went to third when Bennett threw wild to second and scored on Remick's single to right. Bailey struck to right and Remick overran second and was touched out. Kelley singled through short would have scored him. The Marines scored in the third after two men had gone. Hamlin and Letch singled and Remick allowed Estebrook's throw of Moser's grounder to go through him and he scored the winning run in the fourth on a single stolen base an error by Brown and Estebrook's slow handling of a grounder.

The Game in Detail

FIRST INNING

The C. C. were up and Brown fanned. Pilgrim beat out a hit to the third, stole second. Estebrook was called out on strikes. Cragen rolled one at Moser that he threw wild to first and Pilgrim scored. Remick was retired to Mims. One run.

Letch fanned. Moser reached first on Brown's fumble. Mims died to Cragen and Moser was thrown out stealing second.

SECOND INNING

Bailey out. Strand to Mims. Kelley died to Hamlin. Linskey thrown out by Strand.

Wiggin struck out. Bennett was thrown out by Pilgrim and Whitmore died to Smart.

THIRD INNING

Smart died to Bennett. Brown fanned. Pilgrim, Moser to Mims.

Strand died to Kelley. McDevitt was thrown out by Brown. Hamlin singled to left. Letch singled to right. Hamlin going to third. Moser grounded to Estebrook and Remick let his throw go through him and Hamlin scored. Mims hit to Estebrook who fumbled and Letch scored. Wiggin fanned. Two runs.

FOURTH INNING

Estebrook died to right center and Whitmore dropped the ball. Estebrook going to second. Bennett threw to get him off the base when nobody was home, and he went to third. Cragen rolled one to Mims, who held Estebrook at third. Remick singled to right scoring Estebrook. Bailey followed out and Whitmore threw to second. Remick overrunning and being tagged. Letch overrunning and being tagged.

CULTIVATE THE RALSTON HABIT

And save not only money but lots of shoe worry. There's a particular reason why Ralstons stand out pre-eminent: they are made over the exclusive Ralston anatomical lasts that duplicate all the foot curves, both bottom as well as top. The result—"Foot Print Fit"—they need no breaking in.

Ralstons are also pace setters for style. Ask the man who knows.

AMERICAN CREW WINS ENGLISH ROWING TROPHY

Healy on Thames, July 5.—The Harvard University Second Eight, which won the Grand Challenge Cup yesterday by defeating the Union Boat Club of Boston, is the first rowing crew to take that coveted trophy to the United States in the history of the cup, which dates to 1839.

The race would have attracted many more Americans than it did but for the fact that the Independence Day celebrations in London kept a great number in the capital. Still there was almost a record through the public interest being considerable. While the English rowers were not enthusiastic they watched the race between the Americans with more than ordinary concern.

It was a good struggle half way, but afterward Harvard always had the upper hand.

Each Cheers the Other.

There was considerable cheering at the close and after the losers had capitulated their conquerors and vice versa, the two crews rowed away together.

The Harvard and English oarsmen held that Harvard's style is superior to that of the union and compare it with the English, their swing and leg work being much alike. This particular style commends itself most and the English say it is almost a victory for the English style.

The winners rowed with splendid judgment throughout the regatta and won all their races in the same way, indulging their rivals with a lead of half a mile or so, and then drawing to the front. They never made a mistake and Charles Lunn, the stroke, kept them going at the same length. Throughout yesterday's contest was a race that was won with brains, as well as strength, and had the successful fight fought out the race with a book of instructions before them they could not have interpreted them more literally.

"Overtakes Her Mother."

At the prize presentation by Lady Hambledon E. L. Phipps, the great Cambridge stroke and one of the umpires, paid high tribute to the rowing of the American crews.

"It would have been more interesting," he said, "had a crew from another country been in the final with Harvard, but that in nowise took away from the merits of the performance. As all of you know, this is Independence Day, the anniversary of the date on which America decided to be independent of England, and she has come forward today to show that the child has overtaken her mother in oarsmanship. The rowing on this occasion has been better than the average. Any of the four semi-finalists ordinarily would have qualified for the finals."

Harvard entertained Leander and the Union clubs to dinner last night. It had been the intention of the winners to compete in the Hamburg regatta and an eight and a four had been chosen, but this trip now has been abandoned.

THE FOURTH AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

There was a large gathering of the members of the Country Club at the club house for which Horace L. Rowe played and refreshments of food were served.

All of the 2014's were open and about everybody had a house party.

In the afternoon a golf tournament was held, with 30 entrants. It was a handicap money competition and the Colonel proved to be better than any of the players. Two handsome silver prizes were offered and C. W. Bass and Naved Constructive E. C. Hartman were tied for first place, both even with money. They will play off for first and second prizes.

FIREGRAPHS.

Control fire stations and bunching of fire apparatus is going out of style in Massachusetts. Malden has advertised its central station for sale, and at Brockton the five pieces of apparatus bunched in the central station will be assigned to other quarters, the station sold and two smaller stations built.

We have noticed that since the Salem fire several cities have found out that their fire departments are not what they should be, but they soon forget it.

The Wakefield, Watertown and Marlboro Firemen's Relief Associations have sent contributions to help the Salem firemen, seventeen of whom were burned out. Why cannot Portsmouth Relief Association send in a hundred or two? We may need help some day. Our good luck may not always be with us.

Manchester is to have four more pieces of auto apparatus to replace some that is horse drawn.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE BREAKS WITH EDUCATIONAL TRUST

Resigns as Member of New England College Entrance Certificate Board -- Will Deal Personally With Secondary Schools.

Dartmouth College has declared its independence of the New England College Entrance Certificate Board of which it has been a member since the establishment of the board twelve years ago. In a letter sent Friday to Professor Frank W. Nicholson of Wesleyan, Secretary of the board, President Nichols announced Dartmouth's withdrawal.

The reason for the action of Dartmouth lies primarily in the unwillingness of the Certificate Board to grant the big New Hampshire College's request for permission to deal with New Hampshire secondary schools directly. Instead of through the medium of the board, Dartmouth contends that such direct action is necessary. In view of the peculiarly intimate relations existing between the state and her chief college. According to the terms of the Dartmouth Charter, for nearly a century and a half the Governor of the state has, by virtue of office, been a trustee of the college. Six others of the twelve trustees must likewise be citizens of New Hampshire. The claim of the state upon the college for a close and sympathetic co-operation with its public school system is therefore, from the Dartmouth viewpoint, a special one that cannot be fully satisfied through the intermediary of a formal board.

Representations to this effect were made last spring to the Colleges whose representatives constitute the Certificate Board. Their refusal to recognize the situation has left Dartmouth no recourse except to withdraw from participation in the work of the board.

The New England College Entrance Certificate Board was established twelve years ago for the purpose of standardizing the administration of the certificate system of college entrance. Today its membership represents sixteen colleges. It has accomplished an invaluable work in bringing the certificate system in New England to a high state of efficiency, with resultant increase in the thoroughness of college preparatory teaching. Its methods, however, have always been mechanical and disciplinary rather than personal and sympathetic in character, and, of late, have aroused considerable opposition among principals and superintendents in the public school systems of New England. The board itself has been characterized as an "Educational Trust," and its action in many cases as arbitrary, unjust and undemocratic.

Dartmouth, which was one of the founders of the board, withdraws reluctantly. But, in view of its obligation on the one hand to the schools of New Hampshire, and on the other hand to the schools outside of New England which furnish more than a third of its student enrollment, the college feels that the time has come for the establishment of new and broader educational policies that shall be worked out in co-operation with the secondary schools, rather than devised exclusively among the higher institutions to be imposed upon the lower. This does not at all imply a lowered standard of admission. It should, in the long run, produce advanced standards; altered, perhaps, to meet changed conditions, but rigorous by enforced by school and college alike because believed in by both.

State Superintendent Merriam's one time ago attacked this board in a certain language, and his views are sustained by about all the lower school educators in New England.

CARRANZA CHIEF OF ALL, VILLA CHIEF OF NORTH

Torreon, Mex., July 5.—That Gen. Carranza is chief of all Constitutional forces and that Gen. Villa is chief of the northwest was the preliminary agreement arrived at today by the joint commission in session here to adjust the situation created by Gen. Carranza's refusal to supply the coal and ammunition needed by General to continue his campaign on Mexico City. This is regarded as the basis on which future negotiations will be conducted by the conference.

It is understood that this is the only condition Gen. Villa has insisted upon. George C. Carothers, confidential agent of the United States government had a long interview with Gen. Villa and afterward said it had been satisfactory. Roque Gonzalez Garza, one of Villa's officials, and Meado Perra, a Carranza man, who are acting as secretaries of the conference, issued this statement:

"In today's session the following was agreed to and approved as the basis of future findings: The division of the north recognizes Venustiano Carranza in all things as commander-in-chief of the Constitutional army and Gen. Villa solemnly reiterates his loyalty. Gen. Francisco Villa will continue as commander of the division of the north."

"The delegates of the north are the guests of Gen. Villa. They were entertained last night at Villa's residence."

"We are all patriots," said Gen. Villa to his guests. "And we should have the good of our country at heart and do our whole duty as good Mexicans should."

Gen. Luis Caballero, governor of the state of Tamaulipas, is one of the members of the conference.

THE COLOR OF HAIR

Some Speculation of Its Relation to Character

In the study of characters, that can be or may be inherited great attention is now being paid to pigmentation and the color generally, because these qualities can be examined more easily than others for the occurrence of what is called coupling of characters or repulsion of characters. The characteristics which are plainly inheritable to plants or animals are supposed generally to be segregated characteristics, each shut up in its air-tight compartment, and so passed on from generation to generation. But on the other hand there are germ characters which have to be joined together to produce a given effect; and there are other germ characters which may hinder or mask or inherit (i.e., another's) developments.

An illustration from plant life will illustrate the meaning of inhibition. Thus if white flowers are mated to colored flowers, and the result is a generation of white offspring, then it is likely that some characteristics in the white parent has inhibited the production of color. An inhibitor is present. In succeeding generations the color will in a certain number of offspring; that is because the inhibitor has disappeared or is not powerful enough to make its presence felt.

The converse of this is when two characteristics, instead of repelling one another have to be united to produce a given effect. This occurrence can be very well studied in the hair of human beings and animals. The hairs submit themselves very readily to microscopic examination. A typical hair is composed of a kind of inner marrow or medulla, not always present, which consists of a column or columns of oval shaped cells. These oval shaped cells contain granules or pigment, and are sometimes like tiny bladders filled with air. Air surrounds them. About, and sometimes the hair is all cortex. The cortex has long pointed cells, and among them also lie granules of pigment. Round the cortex is again wrapped the skin of the hair, a layer of flat cells like the skin of a fish. The color of the hair as a whole depends on the color of the pigment, but also on the way its pigment is deposited.

Thus in a light and sandy hair, the pigment of a reddish yellow color is chiefly diffused through the cells and through the air spaces between them. In darker hair the pigment is present as dark brown or black granules. In the air of some red headed people there are no granules, but only diffused pigment. The same is true of albino hair. Hair that has turned white shows no structure. The air space, the pigment and its distribution are roughly the three factors which determine hair color.

It is the relations between these as H. Oslow points out in an extremely interesting article in Knowledge, which is being studied by the Mendelians in tracing the inheritance of black, yellow and chocolate hair color among for example, guinea pigs. The distribution of the granules affords one avenue of investigation; another

A SAFE AND SANE FOURTH ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

Chicago, July 5.—Statistics compiled late tonight show that the country enjoyed the quietest Fourth in its history. The figures are:

Dead, 15—by fireworks 6; by gunpowder, 4; by torpedoes, 2; by revolver 1.

Injured, 243—by fireworks, 195; by gunpowder, 30; by torpedoes, 5; by toy pistols, 58; by cannon, 11; by runaway, 4.

The accidents last year were 32 dead and 1134 injured. The record this year due to the increasing "sane Fourth" movements, is thus far less than half of the previous year and shows but a small proportion of the accidents of a few years ago when the use of fireworks was practically unrestricted. The figures for today, however, may be somewhat increased by more complete returns.

The property loss so far reported was (rival as compared with $125,000 last year. The yearly loss suffered from fireworks has ranged from $40,700 in 1902 to $724,000 in 1909.

There were fewer deaths in the celebration today than in any of the 16 years that records of the toll have been kept, with the exception of 1899, when only three lives were lost. But in that year the injured were reported as 1074, or three times that of today. Philadelphia's report of 170 injured was more than that of New York, which had the next largest number, and it was believed that many of those included in the list suffered from minor hurts. The casualties at 1913burgh also was high, 27, with no fatalities.

So stringent was the enforcement in Chicago of the ordinance prohibiting the sale of fireworks and firework that only one person was killed and three injured slightly in this city. The names of two boys who died yesterday from burns received in the explosion of fireworks they had dug from rubbish near an abandoned factory were added in the list, however.

Curiously Vera Allen, 8 years old, to the spot where she had seen boys place a torpedo on a car track. A street car came along and exploded the torpedo, a piece of it setting fire to the flimsy holiday dress she wore. When her mother had extinguished the flames the child was dead.

One of the three injured was a woman who was struck in the hip by a stray shot. The casualties here were the smallest the city had known.

YOUNG MAN HELD UP AND ROBBED

Leo Butler, a lad 17 years old, was held up and robbed by two other young men on Marginal road Friday night and the thieves secured $5. Young Butler who is a quiet young fellow was on Congress street talking with two young fellows and leaving them a message that he was going to the playground.

He walked down Rogers street and when passing the fence at Capaldi's greenhouse saw two men standing in the dark and as he passed they suddenly jumped on him, shutting off his light for help, and dragged him through a hole in the fence, rifled his pocket taking all of his money, amounting to $5.99. They then jumped the fence and ran away. Young Butler went to the police station and made a complaint and the police are now looking for two young suspects. They found the evidence on the sidewalk and on the other side of the fence of his struggle, and from his description are seeking two young men who have suddenly left town.

appears in the analysis of the pigment itself. The pigment consists of what is called a ground substance, combined with two others, one of which we may speak of as color giving, and the other color making. Thus hair may be colorless because one of the factors is absent or both; or because something is present which prevents the color maker, the enzyme, from getting to work.

ELPHANT FIRST-AID CORPS.

Carl B. Akcey, African explorer, in a communication to the National Geographic Society, at Washington, D. C., tells of an elephant "first-aid brigade" made up of the female elephants of a herd, which not only attempted to give succor to their wounded "sultan," but went on "patrol duty" in an effort to punish his assailant.

While hunting elephants in Uganda, Mr. Akcey came upon a herd in a clearing, rounded up in close formation, conspicuous of the presence of an unseen enemy. "There were about 25 elephants, mostly cows, and just as I was on the point of backing off to a safer distance, thinking there were no big bulls in the lot, a fine pair of tusks appeared on the near side," he says. "A clump of bushes offered cover for a near approach, and I went in quickly to within 20 yards of him, and as his front leg was thrust forward offering a good opportunity for a heart shot, I fired both barrels of the double rifle in quick succession.

"All was confusion as I seized my second rifle, and seeing there was no direct charge, retreated some 50 yards to the top of an ant hill, from which I could see what was going on. I then witnessed a scene such as I had heard described and which I had been keen to verify. A number of cows were clustered about the bull, for he had fallen 30 yards from where he was shot, and with their tusks and trunks were doing their best to get him upon his feet; the remainder of the cows were doing patrol duty, rushing about in an increasing circle, searching for the source of the trouble. That meant me, so I retired to a safe distance and waited for the atmosphere to clear. This bull stood 11 feet and 4 inches high at the shoulders, and the tusks weighed 66 and 110 pounds respectively, while the circumference of the front foot at the sole was 67 1/2 inches, the largest recorded, I believe.

"It is generally understood that large bull elephants are more frequently to be found apart from the herds, but our experience does not bear this out. Three bulls that we have shot, having tusks each weighing over 100 pounds, have been herd bulls. We have found the large old bulls enjoying the society and protection of large herds of cows and young animals. One splendid old bull well known in Uganda, who has been seen by many hunters, is so well protected by a large herd of most aggressive cows, who charge at the slightest intimation of danger, that he still survives. These old bulls are very rare, for when one has developed tusks of 50 pounds he becomes the target of every hunter, native or white, who sets eyes upon him; thus it is only the more crafty or timid individuals that, seeking the protection of large herds or clinging to the more inaccessible regions, such as dense forests, manage to survive to a ripe old age and develop a full growth of ivory."

POLICE NEWS

Sunday evening officers Anderson and West made a capture of four skatters at the railroad yard. They had secured a keg of beer from a freight car and when the officers arrived they had it open. It was during a fine time. They were James Driscoll, Guy Trueman, William Sweeney and William Marston. They were locked up charged with larceny.

Sunday night's blotter contained the names of two for assault and two for larceny, and four for larceny.

Saturday night there were only two, and three marked for safe keeping.

CLAIMS TITLE TO LAND

Mrs. Charles R. Newcomb Will Demand Rent of Certain Cottagers at Hampton Beach, It is Stated.

Hampton Beach, July 5. The experience of cottage owners at this resort bids fair to duplicate that of the residents of Salisbury Beach, owing to the dispute over ownership of land.

Mrs. Charles R. Newcomb of Haverhill, Mass., claims the title to a large section near the western end of the Mill Bridge and it is stated that next Tuesday she will cause papers to be served on all the cottagers on the land in question, demanding that they hereafter pay her rent.

The town of Hampton contends Mrs. Newcomb's title on the ground that the property is made land. A suit is now pending before the New Hampshire Supreme Court over the ownership of the land.

MABEL TO JULIA.

Dear Julia:

I heard you speak at the club last week, and I enjoyed the little talk more than I can tell you.

Next time you have anything to say about household efficiency, I want you to take up the question of advertising. Does every woman understand what an important part the reading of newspapers plays in her scheme of home economy? If I hadn't been a persistent reader from the start, I wouldn't have such a happy, cozy home today—neither would you.

Ever,

MABEL.

or not. Miss Hammond stated that since the first of the year she had called at the place where Miss Farmer is confined eighteen or more times, but had only been allowed to see her once or twice. On Saturday afternoon June 27, she called to see her cousin, but was told by the nurse in charge that she would have to obtain permission from Dr. Cowley first.

"I went to his office and he finally granted me permission, after he had indulged in a trade of personal abuse against George B. Hammond, Miss Farmer's guardian, and Col. Keefe. During his remarks he said Miss Farmer wished that Keefe and I were away from the homestead. I went to the subterranean and told the attendant at the door that I had permission to see Miss Farmer. This I think they doubted as they went into a room to telephone. I did not wait but went right up to Miss Farmer's room and she was glad to see me. I asked her if it was so that she wished Col. Keefe and myself to leave the homestead, and she denied making any such statement.

Upon Miss Farmer's denial that she made such statement Miss Hammond alleges that the attendant forcibly seized her by the neck with one hand and placed the other over her mouth so that she could not talk further with Miss Farmer. She was then ordered from the sanitarium under threat of arrest, she said.

Miss Hammond states that during one of her visits she asked Miss Farmer if she was writing the articles that had appeared in some of the papers over her signature and she denied it. On one occasion when she visited Miss Farmer, as she was leaving the latter gave her a box saying, "Emma, here is something I want you to keep." As she was going down the stairway the nurse seized the package telling her that they did not allow anything to be taken from Miss Farmer's room.

Tampering With Justice.

A Chicago man who has been indicted on the charge of "framing" witnesses and "fixing" jurymen in important trials says that such work is a regular business in that city and that a large number of men are concerned in it. He talks about "field work" and coolly quotes a list of prices prevailing in this field of activity. These show that "fixing" a jury in a murder case costs from $5,000 to $15,000; "field work" in a murder case, $2,000 to $12,000, and in less important cases the prices run down, being as low in some instances as $10 to $50 for supplying "fake" witnesses, etc.

Without doubt there is too much truth in this story, although it is usually safe to make some allowance for the disclosures of evil doers when for any reason they see fit to lay the careers of themselves and their associates open to the public. There is an old saying that "One might as well be hung for an old sheep as a lamb," and, acting on this theory, persons who come out with confessions of wrong doing would naturally be inclined to make their stories as startling as possible.

However, there is no reason to doubt that there is too much tampering with juries and witnesses in important trials, particularly in the large cities, which teem with blacklegs—some of them having education and talents of a high order—who are ready to make a dollar by any means at their command, no matter how dishonorable. And there are cases in which it would appear that the evil of thwarting justice in the courts is not confined entirely to the big centers of population.

And yet there is reason to believe that the average jurymen is honest, in spite of many verdicts which seem to point to the contrary. There are many men who are extremely set in their views and beliefs, and if there is a place in the world where it is the duty of a man to stand by his convictions it is in the jury box. The jury is a body that is not subject to the sway of majorities and it is the duty of a jurymen to perform his duty as he sees it. Without doubt, most jurymen do this, and in cases where "fixing" is proved the penalties imposed should be such as to effectually discourage the practice of tampering with the administration of justice.

Statistics show that there were many more marriages in the country last month than in June, 1913, and the optimistic are inclined to regard this as an indication of business prosperity. But the contradictions on this point are so frequent and pronounced at present that the average person will have to judge for himself, and the judgment will depend very largely on how his own business is running. The country always seems prosperous to the man whose business is booming, and vice versa.

A Chicago physician is about to establish a mid-air sanatorium for the treatment of heart weakness. It is to be held 2,000 feet above the earth by an anchored balloon, and the treatment of the patients will consist in spending their nights at that elevation. It is to be hoped this novel "sanatorium" will prove a success, but it would seem safer if there could be an anchorage above as well as below.

The United States Express Company retires from the field, its business being taken over by other companies. The parcel post is doubtless responsible for this action, but it seems that not all of the companies are ready to throw up their hands and quit. Without doubt there is money in the express business yet, though the picking is not so good as it was before Uncle Sam began to compete.

A dispatch says that dodging deer is one thing that keeps automobilists in the Adirondack region busy, the animals being so numerous and tame that they are almost as much of a nuisance on the roads as cows would be. If this is so, deer hunting should be very easy in the open season.

The Salem fire was a big one and made prompt relief work on a large scale necessary. But the call for $1,000,000 strikes some people as possibly a little hysterical, if nothing worse. That is a good deal of money.

A bookkeeper in the office of the Boston overseers of the poor has confessed to the embezzlement of more than $5,000 from the poor fund. Almost as bad as robbing church poor boxes.

At the present time Mt. Lassen is the greatest smoker in the country, but thus far no tobacco company has risen to proclaim that its goods are used exclusively by the champion puffer.

Times must be hard indeed if they are responsible for the falling off in baseball patronage that is complained of. The game is about the last luxury that the average fan will forego.

Nationwide prohibition now prevails in the navy. Will this increase its efficiency as a guaranty of peace?

The hay makers now have their inning.

PLAN TO OBSERVE OLD HOME WEEK

Merchants and Residents of Exeter to Co-operate in Big Celebration.

This summer Exeter will awake from its annual lethargy and have a real, live "Trade in Exeter and Old Home Week."

This was decided at the last meeting of the Business Men's association, and the dates are from Aug. 3 to Aug. 8. There has been a generous amount already contributed, and the merchants are still soliciting more.

The program has not been fully decided upon, but there will soon be committees appointed to make the week's features some of the best ever held in Exeter.

Some have suggested band concerts to be held in different parts of the town; an industrial parade one day; a firemen's muster; baseball, athletic sports and vaudeville acts at different times, with additional street lighting. The program will be decided upon when the next meeting is held on the evening of July 13.

It has been many years since Exeter has held such an occasion, and only one Old Home day has been held in the town's history.

During the summer the town has been very quiet as many go away for the summer months, and the summer sojourners are few, most of them going into smaller towns in this section.

Joseph Knowles, "Wild Man," Plunges Into Sierras to Live.

Photos by American Press Association.

Joseph Knowles, the "next to nature" man, has abandoned civilization again and is losing himself in the Sierra Nevada mountains in California. Knowles is the man who went into the wild Maine forests last year without a stitch of clothing, without food or matches or anything whatsoever to protect himself. He succeeded in making his own clothing out of grasses and bark. He killed his own game with a bow and arrow which he made without knife or any implement. He demonstrated conclusively that a man can live and live well when forced to rely entirely upon his own ingenuity. He told his interesting story in "Alone in the Wilderness" and will probably tell his present experiences in a later work. One picture shows Knowles greeting his mother upon his return from the wilds. The other shows the crowds that welcomed him back.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Deserved Tribute.

Nashua citizens, irrespective of party, assembled in City hall auditorium Thursday evening to pay honor to New Hampshire's senior senator, Hon. Jacob H. Gallinger.

It was altogether fitting that they should do this. During his years in the national Congress he has kept faith with his constituents. With native ability, rare eloquence, and ripe judgment, he has stood for his convictions—and these convictions have ever been an open book. No man ever said, with regard for the truth, that it was not known where Senator Gallinger stood. He has never trucked.

That workmen in Nashua have been well employed, that spindles have hummed and the music of the shoe machinery has been heard here constantly, that there has been the full dinner pail and not the public soup kitchen, has been the result of his belief, and the belief of others, in an adequate protective policy. And the benefit to industrial concerns is equally shared with the farmer and the merchant.

Material things have been brought to Nashua. But that is incidental. The rousing cheers given last night were not because Nashua has a post-office and a fish hatchery, but because Mr. Gallinger, the man assigned to the duty of representing Nashua and New Hampshire in the Senate, has done nobly and well.

The key note of the meeting, representative as it proved, was: "He must re-enlist." He could not have left the hall last night without feeling repaid in a measure for the sacrifices he has made to enter this fall's campaign.

Active and vigorous, in his prime, mentally New Hampshire would sadly miss his retirement now. The issue was fairly put by the eloquent toastmaster, Mr. Crankshaw.—Nashua Telegraph.

TEN CADILLACS PURCHASED FOR FUNERAL EQUIPMENT

The ever-widening adaptability and application of the motor car is being illustrated each day, as new uses are found for it, but perhaps one of the most striking and significant advances made is the adoption of the automobile for the funeral cortege. Now that perfection of mechanical construction has been practically realized, funeral directors are beginning to appreciate the advantage of motor transportation in their line of business, especially because of dignity, comfort and time-saving virtues.

A case in point recent occurred in Baltimore. In that city last month the Cadillac distributor sold ten cars in one order to two funeral directors. Each firm will have a motor hearse and four Cadillac eight-passenger limousines, and by a mutual arrangement each firm can command an equipment of the eight limousines.

With an order of this size involving an expenditure of so many thousands of dollars, it was natural that a very thorough consideration should be given the selection of the car. The Cadillac won out, because, as the purchaser phrased it, its record invited and inspired confidence. There were many very practical considerations. It was necessary to have an electric and self-starting equipment that was thoroughly reliable and dependable. A funeral cortege must move with decorum. The outlines must be plain and dignified and the car must, above all, be silent in its operation and movements.

Occupants of these cars will ride in comfort—even luxury—protected from inclement weather and, while proceeding with all the dignity the occasion demands will yet save, in Baltimore, one hour and a half in going to and from the cemeteries.

CURRENT OPINION

Absurd to Dwell on Sex Antagonism; Husband Inspiration of Wife and Wife of Husband.

Antagonism between the sexes does not exist. Marriage is a partnership in which both husband and wife contribute equal shares of counsel and courage in meeting perplexities. Camaraderie between man and wife is essential for a successful marriage.

I believe in a woman seeking the sane, good advice of a man in her business ventures. I have attended to my own affairs since the death of my husband fourteen years ago, and I have found the advice of men necessary and valuable to me in all my business experience.

It is absurd to dwell on the antagonism of the sexes. The husband is the inspiration of his wife and the wife of the husband. It was this principle that hook used in the public schools of my state. My husband was my constant inspiration. A woman may well work after she is married. That depends on circumstances, which are different in each individual case.—By Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, President General Federation of Women's Clubs.

CHURCH NOTES.

An interesting service was held yesterday at the Pearl St. Baptist church when a silk flag was presented to the Sunday school by Mrs. Carll, patriotic instructor, in behalf of Storer Relief Corps. It was very gratefully received by Supt. Miss Hoyt, who called for a rising vote of thanks from the Sunday school, all uniting in singing "The Star Spangled Banner." Very interesting remarks were made by the pastor, Rev. E. P. Moulton, followed by prayer, all uniting in the Lord's Prayer.

The annual picnic of the Pearl St. Free Baptist Sunday school will be held at Rand's Grove, Jenness beach, on Wednesday, July 8, if fair; if stormy, on Thursday.

A chartered car will leave the square at 9 o'clock to convey the members to the grove.

The Epworth League and Standard Bearer or the Methodist church will hold a moonlight picnic at Rye Beach this evening.

The sunset service at the playgrounds on Sunday evening was very successful and brought out a large attendance.

Mrs. Benrich and family of Methuen, Mass., are spending a few weeks at Rye Beach.

Dr. Donald McLachlin and family of Greenland are occupying the Drake cottage at Foss Beach for the month.

Mr. Raymond O. Walker passed the week-end at his home at Rye Center, returning to Lynn early this morning.

Mrs. Harold Putnam Knowlton and three children of Malden have arrived in town to spend the summer months as the guests of the former's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Berry.

Mr. Knowlton is spending the week with his family here.

Mr. Alonzo Terry of Boston was the week-end guest of his parents in this town.

Mr. and Mrs. Yeats of Worcester are the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Rath of Cable road.

William Philbrick of South Natick, Mass., is the guest of friends at Foss Beach.

The residents of Jenness Beach celebrated the Fourth at the beach on that evening with a fine spirit.

A big display of fireworks, followed by a large bon fire, and a marshmallow toast was the order.

Then the party repaired to the Squire's residence where refreshments and music were enjoyed until long after midnight. The sociability of this resort was very apparent in this joint celebration.

Fireworks and bonfires were the thing of the day at the beaches here. The magnificent display of fireworks in the evening was enjoyed by hundreds.

The Grapic Alumni Association held its third annual dinner at the Champernowne hotel, Friday evening. Twenty-nine sat down to the tables which were appropriately decorated with American flags and wild roses. At each place was a unique souvenir with the school colors. After discussing an excellent dinner, a business meeting was held at which the association elected the following officers: President, Elmer B. Cole; vice president, Ralph Baker; secretary and treasurer, Lillian M. Godfrey; executive committee for three years, Anne Knight and Harlow Paul. It was also voted to hold alumni socials at Academy Hall during the year and a committee was appointed to take charge of these. After the business meeting adjourned remarks were made by Principal L'Amoureux and by Calvin L. Hayes, president of the trustees. Hon. A. B. Cole made the address of the evening which was listened to with interest and which elicited great applause. After the speaking the alumni adjourned to the dance hall where the time passed pleasantly until the meeting broke up to take a special car home at a late hour. Altogether, it was the most successful dinner so far held by the association and great enthusiasm was manifested by those present.

Since January 10, 1914, G. G. Parker Street, G. A. A., has lost by death five comrades, and at the last meeting of the post the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Our dearly loved father in his infinite wisdom, has removed from our midst Comrades Charles N. Holmes, George W. Damon, Daniel W. Jordan, Moses A. Safford, Josiah McCobb;

Therefore be it resolved that in their death our lost five of its oldest and beloved comrades, and we as comrades of G. G. Parker Post, No. 99, bow in sorrow; but with words of comfort and sympathy strive to lighten the sorrowful burden of the bereaved families.

And be it further resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon our records and a copy sent to the bereaved families.

CALIFORNIA HAS A 50,000 MILE CADILLAC CLUB

California has developed a new idea in organizations of motor car owners. In most instances automobile clubs are non-exclusive in membership so far as the achievement of car and owner is concerned, qualifications being based on an entirely different matter. The new California idea, however, is based entirely on driving records, and is confined to Cadillac owners who have a mileage of 50,000 or more.

The idea started in the garage of Don Lee, California distributor for the Cadillac, when several owners recently were swapping experiences in rolling off the miles. Nearly all had driven at least 50,000 miles and there were some who had touched the 75,000 and 100,000 mark. Someone suggested that a long distance touring club be formed and the idea met with such favor that the "Cadillac 50,000 Mile Club" was organized immediately.

There are a large number of Cadillacs in California known to have passed the 100,000-mile mark, but 50,000 miles was selected as the minimum for membership qualification in order to admit those who have been driving only two or three years. Perhaps a dozen men qualified as charter members, but the club proved to be such a popular idea that the membership grew with great rapidity and Don Lee reports that he expects the club will have an enrollment of 1,000 before the season is well advanced.

It is probable that the club will have several classes so that the owners who have driven 100,000 miles can profit by a little distinction. Each member of the club will carry a small plate on the radiator of his car which will be the badge of distinction.

A BAGGAGE EXPRESS

WOMAN KILLED IN AN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Car Turned Turtle at Packer River-- Pet Dog Drives Off Rescue Party From Body of Mistress.

Mrs. Ephraim Hamel of Lynn, was instantly killed, her daughter Geraldine and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis of Lynn, were also injured when an automobile in which they were riding turned turtle at Packer River outside of Newbury on Sunday afternoon.

The automobile driven by Mr. Lewis was going along the road at a fast rate of speed when he suddenly lost control and it left the road and went down over an embankment turning turtle. A pet bull terrier owned by Mrs. Hamel was in the car and he was thrown free and when a rescue party arrived he held them at bay standing over the dead body of his mistress and refusing to allow anybody to come near. It was necessary to lasso him before the car could be righted and the people released. Mrs. Hamel was dead when found, and the others were badly injured and were at once rushed to the Newburyport hospital.

BIGGEST AND NOISEST NIGHT BEFORE FOR YEARS

The biggest, noisiest and cleanest celebration of the night before for twenty years, was the opinion of about everybody about the city last night. It was a real old fashioned celebration with all of the modern methods of noise making added, and it was the kind of a time that everybody enjoyed. As one man expressed it "Good heavenly fun."

There were more people during the evening, in fact until well into the morning than was ever before seen here, and at the big bon fire there were at least eight thousand people within sight of the fire.

The early evening was noisy, the crowds of young people and not a few old, paraded the main streets and every device for creating a noise was in evidence, from the latest of horns to a whole string of cow bells. The crowd were good natured and the observed very well the rules about fireworks in the business district. But fire arrests were made and no precautions will follow in these cases. In the crowd were hundreds of enlisted men, all having the time of their life and celebrating the advent of the national holiday with great glee. There was very little drunkenness, in fact but three arrests were made and these were trounced.

The local merchants who handle fireworks and Fourth supplies, were sold out before midnight, where ordinarily they keep open until morning.

At eleven o'clock the Portsmouth City Band which was secured through the efforts of Fred A. Gray gave a concert on Congress street and at 11:30 a parade was started headed by members of the Elks with red fire and several hundred others. They marched up Pleasant to Congress to Middle to State to Pleasant streets to Dunkins avenue and the play ground. Red fire was burned in profusion and by Barker were on until well into the morning and all of the regulars and many special police were on duty. They found the crowd while noisy inclined to be reasonable.

Mr. Gray a Great Worker.
A great deal of the credit for the big night before must be given to Fred A. Gray. He secured the permit for the bon fire and then set about making it a success, with his auto truck and practically all of his gang of pointers, he worked both Thursday and Friday hauling the material and getting ready. Friday afternoon he thought the band would add to the fun, so he hustled around and secured subscriptions and then hired the Portsmouth band to play from 11 to one o'clock. He interested the Elks to form a parade and then spent his own money to secure enough red fire to make the parade look good. He is a hustler and is deserving of every credit.

FRED A. GRAY

Appreciate Efforts of Merchants.
Mr. Fred A. Gray wishes to thank the merchants and everybody else who assisted in making the celebration and the bon fire a success. The merchants were very generous and contributed liberally.

HUERTA TO ELECT A PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT

Will Seek Foreign Post to Save His Family.

Washington, July 5.—Senor Lascrua, Pedro Lascrua will be chosen constitutional president of Mexico, in the election to be held in the territory controlled by General Huerta today according to unofficial advices received here today. The election was called by the Chamber of Deputies at the request of General Huerta.

The candidates are Senor Lascrua, General Refugio Velasco and General Garcia Pella. General Velasco and General Pella are regarded as candidates representative of the Mexican army, while Senor Lascrua, one time Minister of Foreign Affairs in the cabinet of President Madero, is known as one of the strongest supporters of Madero democracy in Mexico.

Senor Lascrua has the distinction of having been President of Mexico at one time for seventeen minutes. That was when President Madero and Vice President Pino Suarez were killed. Senor Lascrua automatically and by virtue of the constitution became President of the Republic. His only official act, however, was to appoint General Huerta as Minister of Interior. Then he resigned and General Huerta, in the absence of a Minister of Foreign Affairs, became Provisional President.

Advices received in Washington indicate that if General Huerta turns the government of Mexico over to Senor Lascrua, the present dictator will be assigned to a mission in Europe, where he will go. It was said to study military affairs.

Senor Lascrua, it was reported, will turn the government over to a commission, provided such a commission is made up of a majority of constitutional representatives. The fact that Senor Lascrua will not take the Presidency with a view of holding it until another election can be held was emphasized in the report.

His well known opposition to General Huerta and the fact that he is not a member of the liberal party, but has on the contrary, been most closely associated with the anti-electoralists, upon whose principles the Madero democracy was based, leads many persons here who are in close touch with the Mexican situation to believe that his "election" would at once solve the political problems existing between the Huertistas and the Carranzistas and pave the way for the immediate realization of peace, provided the differences in the ranks of the revolutionists are settled and General Carranza and General Villa are brought in harmonious relations.

Reports received in Washington said that if Senor Lascrua takes over the Presidency of Mexico General Huerta will leave that country at once. A steamship is reported to be waiting for him at Puerto Mexico, and it was said that as soon as he transfers the executive office to his successor he will take his family and at once leave the capital for Puerto Mexico and embark there.

FERNALD-RAIT.

Popular Young Couple Keep Marriage Secret for Over a Year.

Wedding cards carrying a genuine surprise and announcing the marriage of Frederick E. Fernald and Miss Edna Raitt were received by their friends today. The young couple have been man and wife for over a year. They were married on Monday, April 21, 1913, at Philadelphia. Though the congratulations are belated they are nevertheless numerous. The groom is a young man who is popular wherever he is known, and fills a position in the clerical force of the hull division at the navy yard. The bride is a native of Eliot and a favorite among her associates. She is a graduate of the Plymouth Business School, class of 1910, where she has until recently filled the position of teacher.

FOUR CARS PILED UP.

Portland Freight Causes Trouble in Southern Division Yard.

A Portland freight switching in the Southern division of the Boston and Maine yard early this morning, backed into a string of freight cars piling up four of the lot in bad shape. One flat car loaded with lumber was tipped over and the lumber scattered about the yard.

The local wrecking crew was called at 1 o'clock and worked a greater portion of the forenoon in clearing the tracks.

AGAIN ATTEMPT DOCTOR'S LIFE

Carman of Freeport Is Made Target for Three Bullets.

Freeport, N. Y., July 5.—Dr. Edwin Carman, in whose office, Mrs. Louise Bailey was murdered last Tuesday evening was shot at three times tonight as he drove in his automobile through the town of Baldwin near here. One of the bullets struck him. The doctor was on his way home from Rockville Center, where he had been to attend a patient.

Evidence sufficient to cause the arrest of a woman as the assassin of Mrs. Louise Bailey has been discovered, according to Sheriff Stephen D. Pettit of Nassau. The exact nature of the evidence he refused to disclose. He announced that the woman would be taken into custody before the end of the week, possibly upon the conclusion of the coroner's inquest, which is to be resumed tomorrow morning.

The sheriff said further that the important evidence in his possession would not be presented at the inquest. Detectives working on the case declared tonight that one of their number had discovered a clew which led him to believe that the murder of Mrs. Bailey was the result of a murder conspiracy hatched by three women living in a nearby village. The motive, the detective said was revenge.

This clew was discredited by the county authorities when it was brought to their attention. The woman, the detectives stated, was trying to kill the doctor and shot Mrs. Bailey by mistake. Despite the disbeliefs the authorities in charge of the investigation declared that the clew would be run down.

The heavy guard thrown around the Carman house last night was taken off today. Only one policeman in uniform remained at the house during the day.

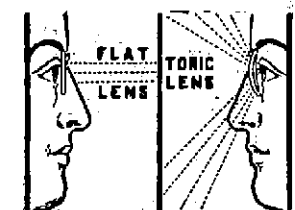

PRICE REMAINS THE SAME

The Cadillac auto has sold for about $2,000, fully equipped, since 1911; for 1915 the price will remain unchanged. It is without doubt the nearest to perfect mechanical automobile built and the only medium price car which has kept its quality and same price for so many years. 1915 will be announced September next.

MINISTER WILLIAMS TO GREECE IS ASKED TO RESIGN

Philadelphia, July 5.—President Wilson has requested the resignation of George Fred Williams, American minister to Greece and Montenegro, as a result of Mr. Williams' public statements regarding the situation in Albania. This became known after the President's arrival here Saturday.

Mr. Williams' own reports on his statements were taken up at the cabinet meeting yesterday and afterwards Mr. Wilson decided their effect was such that it would be improper for Mr. Williams to longer represent the United States in the Balkans.

It has been understood that Mr. Williams' of his own accord has forwarded his resignation but so far as could be learned here it has not been received by the President.

Washington, July 5.—The term of George Fred Williams as minister to Greece and Montenegro has been brief but has attracted much attention. A few weeks ago President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and other officials were amazed by a published report that Mr. Williams had addressed a circular to the powers offering his services as a mediator in the Albanian crisis.

State department officials then said the minister had no authority to do so but had been given permission to do so. Secretary Bryan called for a report on the incident and Mr. Williams replied he was sending one by mail. While there is no confirmation here, it is believed in official circles that the minister's resignation is accompanying that report.

The concern of administration officials was increased recently by publication of a further attack on the Albanian situation, the part of the European powers and the rule of Prince William, attributed to the minister. So far as is known the powers have made no representations to Washington over the minister's activities, but officials would not have been surprised if they had. Yesterday President Wilson personally called the attention of the state department to the gravity of the situation and pointed out that no true should be lost in letting the powers know Mr. Williams was acting without the instructions or approval of the United States. The call for his resignation followed.

OLD FLAX WHEEL

Had an Attraction for Antiquarians—Adventures of One Woman in Search of Her Own.

"Can I take that little spinning wheel out of the attic and play with it outdoors?" It was in that season of the year known as "preserving" time, so no one stopped to give more than a hurried assent, probably relieved to think that all the mischievous small girl wanted was a spinning wheel, when she was credited with thinking up dozens of more complicated ways of amusing herself. The little wheel was carried, and for nearly two hours quiet reigned around the old farmhouse.

Then a party of ladies drove past, saw the spinning wheel, and a thrifty grandmother was delighted to change it for what seemed a wonderful sum in those days before the "antique craze" had set in.

Most of us who love "old things" can trace it back to just one thing which kindled our enthusiasm and longing to possess the old-time treasures. Perhaps your first "find" was an old plate, a pair of antlers, a Windsor chair, a gilt mirror, an old clock, a casket, or even a tea bottle, but whatever it was, once you yielded to the fascination of acquiring antiques you will never get away from its spell.

However, what I want to tell you about is that little spinning wheel I suppose to be accurate I should call it a flax wheel. This first little spinning wheel was of dark wood and bound with brass. However, it was gone, and even at $5, one knows the adage about the "sophomore" so the search was started for spinning wheel number two. Number two was found in great-grandmother's attic, where it was discovered one rainy day in regular story book fashion. Near it was a glorious old silhouette to which no attention was paid whatever.

This spinning wheel was presented with such promptness that one was prepared for the "string" hitched to the gift, for it came with the sentence that of course "you are not to take it out of the house." A spinning wheel in the house is worth two in the future. The youthful collector went to Canada, great-grandmother's home was broken up. Her lovely mahogany was scattered throughout a large family. The fascinating spinning wheel and the Revolutionary bayonet vanished. Then the girl came back from Canada and found the beloved wheel in the proud possession of a well-loved aunt.

Now, by this time she had learned that there is no pleasure in a thing unless it can be acquired courteously and honestly, so she caused a search for a spinning wheel among the ancestral treasures. Any old flax wheel would do. The next one was found in the basement of a shop on Church street in Hartford and she actually paid $1 for a wheel which consisted mainly of a framework and the wheel. However, it made a boarding house room look cozy to come home to after a day in the office. There is a domestic air about a little flax wheel that no one can deny.

Don't think for a moment that the search stopped there. If you've ever driven along the back country roads you know that you sometimes find the saddest of New England sights, a deserted home; sometimes there is only the fireplace, chimney and the flax bush left, and often there will be a framework and the fireplace with the attic still around it. Show me the lever of the ancient who can pass them by without exploring.

One day while we were going "a-maying" we came to a darling of an old house. Yes, I know that "we" gives me away, but it is much more fun to hunt in couples after one grows up, and besides all this, I don't like to drive. This old house must have been deserted for many years, but with great care one could go across its old floor.

In our corner opposite the fireplace was an exquisite corner cupboard with scalloped shelves. A wild desire to possess it was sparked when an investigation proved it to be part of the house. To have taken it would have been to have literally pulled the home down on our heads. One is sometimes choice of one's scalp even at 20. A mere skeleton of a staircase led to a tiny attic built around the chimney top. No ladder led to this attic and the spinning wheel lady is short; however, the cheerful man is not short, and by risking his precious neck he actually discovered a spinning wheel resting up in this attic.

I have neglected to state that the cheerful man weighs in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. Now, if he had only stayed in the attic all the girl and the spinning wheel had got down, everything would have been all right.

But he didn't; he says that the attic was giving way with him. We shot with laughter to this day when we think of that avalanche of spinning wheel, flying plaster, plunk or-ganicle, Leghorn hat and Sunday suit, for the stairs gave way, and we all landed in a heap in the cellar. The spinning wheel was smashed to bits. Fortunately, we were not so fragile as the wheel; probably because we were not so old. However, when he stopped laughing we gathered up the fragments of the wheel, recaptured the horse, filled the shag baggy with apple blossoms and started home.

Did that dampen my ardor for spinning wheels? Not a bit; just gave me an additional picture for my memory book. Two years later the ideal spinning wheel was before me at a country auction. It was complete and perfect, even to the little guard hanging from it. This was to hold the water with which the spinner occasionally moistened her fingers while working.

I had only $5 with me that day and the treasures that were in that old homestead-mahogany davenport, salt glaze pottery, Revolutionary uniforms, old brasses, Lowestoft china and innumerable treasures. The spinning wheel was put up, I started to bid, my heart beating so fast I could scarcely speak. Some one was bidding against me. Bid by bid the price crept to the limit of my purse, and finally the little wheel went to the other bidder.

I slipped out of the crowd and behind a pile of old skin-covered trunks I sat down and wept over the dear little wheel. Of course I went back into the fray and spent the $5 and acquired a tiny trunk studded with brass nails, a white rug and a slat-back chair, and toward sunset went home, only to find the spinning wheel sitting calmly waiting on the veranda for me. I almost hugged it, and I have never forgotten the generosity of the collector who gave it up to me.

The fact that I afterward paid him what it had cost him did not cancel my debt of gratitude by any means. Grandmother herself spun a thread on it from the flax that came with it. Dear little flax wheel, my first old treasure. Mrs. L. J. Lusk of Avon, Conn., in Hartford Courant.

FILES HEAVY ATTACHMENT

Hampden Railroad Corporation Brings $4,000,000 Action Against Boston and Maine.

An attachment for $4,000,000 on the real estate of the Boston & Maine Railroad has been made in the Suffolk County Registry in connection with a suit brought by the Hampden Railroad Corporation to enforce alleged liabilities of the Boston & Maine in connection with the construction of the Hampden. The suit has been entered in the Hampden County Superior Court and is returnable on Aug. 3 at Springfield.

The suit aims to recover from the Boston & Maine between $2,500,000 and $4,000,000 as cost of the Hampden and it is declared that the litigation is well designed to straighten out all matters in dispute between the two roads. Attachments in the amount of the old damnum have been filed against Boston & Maine real estate in other counties also. The Boston & Maine has allowed to go to protest the Hampden's $248,000 five per cent note, due Wednesday, representing a loan to provide for meeting principal and discount of other notes of the Hampden paid some six months ago.

THE NAVY DEFEATED ARMY AT VERA CRUZ

Vera Cruz, July 5.—The United States Navy vanquished the Army and Marine Corps Saturday in a bold program of athletic sports, which marked their celebration of the Fourth of July on Mexican soil. Hundreds of natives thronged the beach where the events were staged and marveled at the manhood of the Americans, who bled in the fierce tropical heat and called it sport.

At noon the total number of participants made by the navy in the athletic events was greater than that of the Army and Marine Corps combined, and the results of the events still to be decided would not bring about any change in their positions.

During the Roman race of the cavalry a native woman standing in front of the galloping teams after they had crossed the finishing line became panic-stricken and was unable to move as the horses approached her.

The driver of the first team, unable to stop his horses, forced them apart, and the animals passed on either side of the woman at full gallop with the rider straddling the space across the shoulders. The woman was untouched. Thousands of sailors and soldiers looking on at the daring feat cheered the rider.

At promptly at noon cannon from the ships and shore thundered a National salute of 21 guns, to which the foreign warships in the harbor replied gun for gun.

LIBERTY POLE
ASSOCIATIONAnnual Meeting Held on July 4 at Liberty Bridge.The annual meeting of the board of directors of the Liberty Pole Association of Portsmouth, N. H., was held at the Liberty Pole at "Liberty Bridge" at Portsmouth, on Saturday, July 4th, at 10 a. m., Colonel John Pender, the president, presiding.The president stated that the conference held by the directors at "Liberty Bridge" September 27, 1913, with Mayor Badger and a committee of the last city council, consisting of Councilmen Pindham, Bennett and Duncan, in relation to needed improvements in the vicinity of the Liberty Pole, had not been productive of action.It was voted that Directors request permission to appear before the present mayor and city council at an early meeting, to urge the need of straightening the street and relaying the sidewalk at "Liberty Bridge," in order that the Association may make the surroundings of the Liberty Pole—now in a most unsatisfactory and deplorable condition—worthy of its patriotic traditions and a credit to the Association and the city of Portsmouth.

Gets in Bad

J. P. Harris, a youthful midship-man of the navy's enlisted personnel, has been dishonorably discharged from the service for cheating during the February and April examination of candidates for admission to the Naval Academy as midshipmen. Harris was one of the first of the enlisted youths to get a chance to graduate from the forecastle to the quarter-deck by way of a course at the Naval Academy.
He is a native of Mississippi, and after passing his own test in February
he impersonated Charles R. Longre, also of Mississippi, and passed under this name in the April examination, taking the test at Richmond, Va.

THE HERALD HEARS

That only one from this city has yet filed a notice for the primary election.
That Portsmouth certainly had all that goes with a Fourth of July celebration.That the "night before" celebration was a corker.That no vaudeville had anything on it from 11 to 1 o'clock.That the good nature of everybody was decidedly noticeable.That the boys are tipping their hat to Fred Gray for his good work.That he certainly was a live wire on the occasion.That it is not too early to predict that Portsmouth will also give the year of 1915 the same welcome.That prominent men have talked this matter since last January.That every city is doing the honor when the old year leaves us and the old city by the sea will not be behind.That the ball game at Rollins Farm on July 4 in which males and females were seen on the diamond, showed that the girls know the game.That the only thing the boys had on them was base sliding.That they don't say whether it was fear or tight skirts that kept them from stealing the bags.That the City band earned its money when it did the march the night before the Fourth.That the musicians of the band never met such close opposition in their lives.That there was some pulling in the Christian Shore district on Friday night.That a young man with a strong pull, pulled the school house bell and a special cop pulled him in.That local restaurants did excellent business on the Fourth and Sunday.That the situation at Green Acre is not clearing any.That the sunshade brigade on Friday night made a hit.That it is estimated that 4000 people were on the playgrounds when the fire was touched off.That the automobile traffic in this city today was a record breaker.That there was no excitement for the fire department during the Glorious Fourth.That the Bartenders had nearly 500 people at the annual outing at Freeman's Point on Saturday.That it was the best affair ever conducted by the organization.That the Gale Shoe Company base ball team is showing some speed.That Somersworth has a 9 o'clock club with all female members.That the boys have made several attempts to break in the ranks by forcing them to affiliate with an authority.That there is nothing to it and the boys will stay on the outside a while longer.NAVY HEADS TO VISIT YARDSecretary and Assistant to Come Here This Month.Secretary Daniels and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt of the navy will shortly visit the navy yard for a thorough inspection. According to the present plans the assistant secretary will be here on July 11 and the secretary will follow on July 17. The visit of these official heads of the navy will mean something of importance to the station as it is understood that both have in view a future development and will look into matters that have given the department much concern for the past year.

SOLD AT AUCTION.

House on Vaughan Street
Purchased by Samuel Katz.The buildings on the property on Vaughan street recently purchased by Col. John H. Bartlett were sold at public auction this morning at 11 o'clock, William T. Entwistle acting as auctioneer. The sides house, so called, was started at $350, and the bids went to $387.50, Samuel Katz being the successful bidder. It is understood that Mr. Katz will have the building removed to his land on Autumn street and the work will be done by Frank Ellis of York Beach.The building occupied for many years as a blacksmith and paint shop was started at $80 and knocked down at $105 to Joseph Atoll. Mr. Atoll stated that he should take the building down and remove it to his home in Newington for the purpose of building an ice house.
